What is the difference in performance between documents saved as binary vs text? A: The biggest issue with saving data as binary is that there is no textual display. You have to read in or parse each byte in order to figure out how to display the content. Furthermore, it is not guaranteed that you can read the binary data back in the same order in which it was written. I am assuming your data represents text and that you do have access to the byte stream. There are a lot of documents that have been saved in binary format (textual, that is) and there is a lot of text in these documents. Even JPEG images can be text if they are saved in the ical/ics calendar file format. For many things, you will be able to display the data in ASCII format, without having to pre-process it. This is the difference between a Word document and a PDF document. For example, PDF documents are not just text documents that have been converted to ASCII. PDFs store the text in a binary format and it's not straight-forward to display the text in ASCII. "Turd" About Me Wednesday, December 7, 2013 One day after lefty Democrats in the U.S. Senate blocked Republicans' plan to keep the federal government funded until the end of the fiscal year, Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid brought the government back to life for the next fiscal year. Republicans will probably keep the government shut down again in April, because the Democratic-led Senate can filibuster the GOP's funding bill, and they might win the 60 votes they need to end the filibuster.Structural basis of the high affinity binding of IgM to human Fc gamma receptors. In this study, we determined the crystal structure of the extracellular domain of the human receptor for IgM (FcgammaRIIIB-CD3deltaepsilon). The crystal structure
