FIFA 19 was the best-selling sports game of 2018, according to IW Technology Consulting, with more than 70.5 million units sold worldwide. The company's latest research, published September 19, confirmed that FIFA 21 is set to be the most-watched and most-played sports game of 2019. "The game you are playing now was made with a lot of innovation, focused on the needs of players," said Alex Bunting, Senior Producer, FIFA 20. "We've gone one step further and blended technology with data to deliver an experience that lets you relive the most intense moments as if it was happening right now." The FIFA Ultimate Team squad used in FIFA 20 has been updated with new, intuitive content and further refined visuals. The World Stars created for FIFA Ultimate Team are now combined into the Team of the Week. The League Matches for FIFA 20 present some of the most dynamic, realistic matches of any game that we have ever produced. FIFA 20 looks closer to real football than any previous version, as shown by the introduction of three-phases of gameplay, the status of each team over the course of a match and the use of real-time effects (RTE) such as sweat and grass in the air. FIFA 20's gameplay features will be showcased next week at the E3 Exhibition in Los Angeles. FIFA 20 includes a host of improvements that make the game more accessible for new and returning players. New to FIFA 20 is the addition of the Coach Mode, which introduces dynamic gameplay and uses real-time tactics. New Passengers and Story Moments features expand on the story-driven experience of FIFA Ultimate Team. A number of improvements to AI and new contextual actions for substituted players make for a more engaging and rewarding overall game experience, and fan-requested features such as Players Now, Player Xtra, Skill Touch, and Players Radar are included. Key to FIFA 20's growth in 2019 is the introduction of two new modes, FIFA Ultimate League and FIFA Club. Ultimate League provides fans of the sport a new way to compete in the world of FIFA Ultimate Team and the new online, season-long competition will deliver the highest quality, player-generated content in the history of the franchise. On the gameplay front, FIFA 20 also features First Touch Control, Player Intelligence, Player Trajectory, on-ball action visuals and connected football moves. FIFA 20'
