Online version .Norval Morrisseau Norval Morrisseau (born November 16, 1937) is a Mohawk artist from Kahnawake, Quebec, Canada. Norval Morrisseau was born into a family of artisans, but his life experience was marked by alcoholism and poverty. His father died when Norval was 12 years old, and two of his uncles died of illnesses believed to be alcohol related, one of which was from alcohol poisoning. In 1955, Morrisseau moved to Montreal and attempted to better his life through numerous jobs, none of which proved to be permanent. He dropped out of school in 1955 and moved to Kahnawake, where he worked as a house carpenter. In the late 1960s, Morrisseau began making a series of figurative paintings that would eventually form the basis of his art, turning to painting over his traditional Mohawk art of ornate carvings and beadwork. He has said that he prefers the name "Norval" to the one by which people recognize him. He has also stated that people call him other names, but have never asked him what those names were. In 2003, Morrisseau was named an Officer of the Order of Canada for his significant contributions to the preservation, display and dissemination of First Nations and Aboriginal art, particularly in the fields of mural and sketch art. In addition to his paintings, Morrisseau created artwork for the album cover of Canadian guitarist and composer Gordon Lightfoot's 1979 album Midnight Sun.
